Woman Bandit in 2 Holdups Here

GROCER LOCKED IN ICEBOX SEES MONEY TAKEN

B. F. Winters Victimized This Morning at Store on East Center Street.

KROGER GROCERY ROBBED

Pair Takes Cash at Point of Gun from Prospect Street Store Manager.

An attractive young woman, about 28, is believed by police to have been the ringleader in two neighborhood grocery store holdups Saturday night and this morning in which $90 was taken.

Locking B. F. Winters, 70, in a large refrigerator at his grocery store and meat market at 1108 East Center street this morning, the woman scooped $20 out of the cash drawer.

Uses Ruse

A ruse was used to get Winters inside the refrigerator. When she entered the store at 7 a. m., she walked around near the refrigerator and asked for a cut of steak. Winters stepped inside the refrigerator and heard the door click behind him.

He pulled aside several quarters of beef and prepared to break his way to freedom through a plate glass front. She stepped around in front, flashed a revolver menacingly and shook her head.

Winters was obliged to watch her take the contents of the cash register, $27.74, and escape.

He remained in the icebox three quarters of an hour before a customer came in and released him. The temperature inside the box was 38 degrees.

Descriptions Tally

The young woman was well dressed and attractive, Winters said. Her description tallied in part with that of a woman who Saturday night menaced Merle Beer, manager of a Kroger store at 513 South Prospect street, while a companion took $70 from the cash drawer.

In this holdup, however, the woman was partially masked and the unmasked portions of her face were colored with bright rouge.

She entered the store first, forcing Beer to walk to the rear of the store. Her companion followed a few seconds later, flourishing a gun and covering Henry Sharp, an assistant.

The holdup occurred Saturday at 9 p. m. There were no customers in the store at the time.

Police are conducting a search for the bandits.

SLAYER OF 2 MEN CAUGHT AFTER FIGHT

Recluse Admits Killing Officer and Youth from Ambush.

By The Associated Press

PAWNEE, Okla., Dec. 8 — Jess Powell, recluse sought for the slaying of a youth and a deputy sheriff last night, was captured early today at Ralston, near here, but not before he had seriously wounded Louis Raba, a posseman.

Sheriff Allen Jones of Pawnee county told the Associated Press that Powell admitted slaying Floyd Bell, 18, and Ed. Hartwick, Pawnee county deputy, from Ambush. Bell's companion, Marion Kendall, 20, was wounded.

Powell shot Raba four times on the street at Ralston when Raba and several other officers alighted from a motorcar to take him into custody. Powell previously had surrendered to City Marshall Hill and citizens at Ralston, and the Ralston officers were holding him awaiting the arrival of the group from Pawnee.

Powell was brought to the jail here and placed under a heavy guard. Feeling was running high

THEATER BOMBED

Third Attack in Two Weeks Made in Akron Area.

By The Associated Press

AKRON, O., Dec. 8—The third neighborhood motion picture theater bombing within two weeks occurred early today when an explosion shattered the rear part of the Rialto theater in Kenmore.

The blast roused scores of residents from their beds and broke a number of windows in buildings and homes adjacent to the theater. The damage at the show house itself was slight, police estimating the loss at $100. No one was injured.

Police were uncertain as to the motive, but investigated reports of labor difficulties.

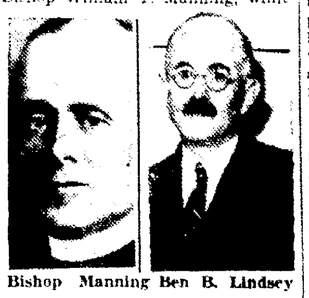

Several men were arrested for questioning but were later released after the wrecking of two theaters by explosions recently.

MOVE CHURCH BATTLE BEFORE COURT TODAY

Warm Legal Conflict Likely Over Ejection of Lindsey from Manning Edifice.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 Former Judge Ben B. Lindsey of Denver, who was ejected from the Cathedral of St. John the Divine yesterday after he had interrupted Bishop William T. Manning, while the bishop was praying appeared in West Side court today and obtained a continuance until Dec. 12, of a charge of disorderly conduct.

Bishop Manning Ben B. Lindsey

He pleaded not guilty and told Magistrate Dreyer he had several speaking engagements which would take him out of the city between now and Dec. 12.

Counsel for Lindsey, who was arrested after he tried to reply to the bishop's attack on his companionate marriage theories, said he would raise the question whether a man has a right to speak out in church under sufficient provocation.

Objects to Continuance

Detective William F. May, who signed the complaint against Lindsey after Bishop Manning refused to do so, objected to the continuance and said there was clear evidence of disorderly conduct.

Arthur Garfield Hays, the former jurist's lawyer, declared he would subpoena Bishop Manning and possibly other clergy. An attempt to obtain the services of Clarence Darrow as associate defense counsel had failed, he said.

Lindsey told reporters after his court appearance that is he decided to bring suit for slander against Bishop Manning he would retain Samuel Untermyer, New York attorney, as his counsel.

While Bishop Manning was delivering the ascription yesterday at the close of a sermon in which he denounced Lindsey's stand on companionate marriage, Lindsey hopped on to the reporter's table in front of the pulpit and demanded a chance to be heard.

"Bishop Manning," he cried, "you have falsely represented me. This is not a house of justice. It is not a house of God, and in justice I ask for five minutes to answer your unfair attack."

The congregation was thrown into turmoil. Two ushers pulled Lindsey from the table. Scores of parishioners rushed forward through the aisles. The former Denver judge was punched and kicked. Several detectives broke into the struggling mass and propelled the victim toward a side door. The bishop continued his prayer with his back to the scene.

"He lied about me," shouted Lindsey as he was forced along.

Borah Condemns Theory That Public Funds Will Bring Permanent Prosperity.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8 — Congress pushed forward its relief legislation today under a fresh warning against too great liberality with the treasury's funds.

On top of Secretary Mellon's disapproval of the project for paying off veterans' compensation certificates, Senator Borah Republican of Idaho, yesterday condemned the theory that prosperity could be restored permanently by spending public money. He termed it both false and vicious, warning that with a substantial deficit in sight, the money for relief purposes will have to come out of increased taxes.

However, he voiced no disapproval of the pending measures for expanded federal public works and farmers' seed loans, merely urging they be kept to the minimum consistent with the emergency, and that the deficit be met by increasing income taxes, "par-

DEATH DECREE SET ASIDE BY SOVIET BOARD

Sentence of Five Convicted as Plotters Commuted to 10-Year Sentence.

CUT OTHERS TO 8 YEARS

Central Executive Committee Springs Surprise with Clemency Edict.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Dec. 8—The Soviet central executive committee today commuted the death sentences of five engineers convicted of a plot to overthrow Soviet regime to 10 years imprisonment.

Sentences of 10 years imprisonment passed on the remaining three defendants in the unusually dramatic trial which was broadcast from one end of the Soviet union to the other were reduced to eight years.

Published in Full

All the newspapers in Moscow came on the streets late today for they published the long verdict in full and devoted what was left of their space to editorials denouncing these eight men as the tools of foreign capital.

The five originally sentenced to death are:

Leonid Ramsin, 43, former professor of the Moscow Technical Institute and director of the heat and power institute, leader of the movement.

Victor Larchev, 43, former head of the fuel department of the state planning commission, said to be next in command to Ramsin.

Nikolai Charnovsky, 62, professor in various technical institutes, and president of the technical council of the supreme economic council

Ivan Kalinikov, 56, former official of the state planning commission and professor in the military aerial academy.

Alexander Fedotov, 67, oldest of the conspirators, professor in various institutes and chairman of the Scientific Research Textile institute

Those whose prison sentences are reduced to eight years are:

Vladimir Ochkin, 30, youngest of the group, secretary to Ramsin in the heat and power institute and manager of the Research section of the supreme economic council

Sergei Kuprianov, 59, director of the technical section of the supreme economic council.

Xenophon Sintnin, 52, engineer of the All-Union Textile syndicate

The prisoners heard the verdict and sentences impassively. Ramsin gripped the desk in front of him and listened intently until he heard his name and then seemed to take no further notice of the proceedings. Larichev stood with downcast eyes. Charnovsky gulped two glasses of water after requesting an attendant to bring them.

EXAMINER SILENT ON GALION BANK REFUND

Taylor Says He Is Not Definitely Certain Refund Will Be Made.

By International News Service

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 8—William Taylor, chief federal reserve bank examiner here, would neither deny nor confirm reports that depositors of the Citizens' National bank of Galion, O., might receive part of their deposits before Christmas, when questioned by International News service today.

"I am not prepared to commit myself one way or the other," Taylor said, "until I am definitely sure that a refund will be made, when it will be made and how much it will be."

The bank examiner said that every effort was being made to collect outstanding resources of the bank so that depositors could be paid.

Federal investigation into the affairs of the bank has been completed, William J. McDermott, assistant United States district attorney, said today.

All additional evidence which was not presented to the November term of the federal grand jury here, will be presented at the January session, McDermott stated.

McDermott has not revealed whether he will ask for further indictments from the January grand jury.

Italian Seamen Die in Quest for $5,000,000 on Sunken Liner.

SALVAGE BOAT GOES DOWN

May Have Struck Hulk of War Munitions Craft, Is Belief.

By The Associated Press

LORIENT, France, Dec. 8—The Italian salvage vessel Artiglio, which was trying to recover $5,000,000 in gold bullion from the sunken liner Egypt, exploded and sank off the island of Houat with the loss of 14 men, port officials here announced today.

The explosion occurred yesterday but first word of it reached here today through a signal station of Hoedic Island, not far from Houat.

Two of the men killed were found in full diving equipment in the wreckage of the vessel. Seven other men who were injured were taken to a hospital at Belle Isle.

Sees Water Spout

The signal man on Hoedic island said he heard a violent explosion about five miles to the southwest of his station, and at the same time saw water spout a thousand feet into the air. Then there was a great billow of smoke and he saw chunks of wreckage dropping into the sea.

Another Italian salvage ship, the Rostro, which was in the vicinity, scurried over to the spot where the Artiglio had been and picked up the seven members of the crew who were injured.

Details of the disaster were not available immediately but the Artiglio was known have been heavily loaded with powder and ammunition.

The Artiglio had temporarily abandoned work on the wreck of the Egypt, which had been shifted by ocean currents after the first salvage operations.

Divers Set Down

At the time of the explosion she was sending divers down to examine the hulks of two munition ships sunk during the war. It was thought possible that she had shoved her nose into the wreckage of one of these, the La Florence, and in some way touched off her own cargo of explosives.

The two derelicts had been condemned as menaces to navigation, and the Artiglio and the Rostro had been ordered to break them up. A warship had taken a group of French marine ministry officials out to the vicinity while the operations were under way.

Christmas Lights To Be Turned on Here Tonight

Marion's uptown business section will radiate more Christmas cheer tonight than ever before when hundreds of gay-colored Christmas lights will be turned on for the first time at 5:30 p. m.

The lights were purchased by Marion merchants, and the current to operate them from tonight until Dec. 26 between half an hour past sunset to 11:30 p. m. has been donated by the C., D. & M. Electric Co.

The colored lights are entwined in laurel, and are hung from white way street lights.

Annual Session Opens Tonight with Public Reception in The Star Auditorium; Harry A. Caton, National Secretary, To Be Speaker.

U.S. ASSISTANT SECRETARY TALKS TUESDAY

GRANGERS from every section of the state were arriving in Marion today for the annual state Grange convention which will get under way tonight with a public reception in The Star auditorium.

The convention proper will begin Tuesday morning, with morning, afternoon and night sessions until the end Thursday afternoon or night. Nearly 4,000 delegates and visitors are expected.

Caton to Speak

The scheduled appearance of L. J. Taber, national grange master, on the program of the public reception tonight will be impossible, it was learned today. Taber is in Boston.

In his place, Harry A. Caton of Coshocton, secretary of the national grange, will give an address. It is hoped Taber will arrive in Marion in time for appearance Wednesday.

Final preparation for the reception of the delegates and visitors were made at a joint meeting of the courtesy committee of the Chamber of Commerce with the reception committee, headed by Mayor L. Don Jones, this morning.

C. B. Rayburn, county superintendent of schools, was placed in charge of a committee to supervise the handling of courtesy cars. A number of Marionites have volunteered to drive their automobiles as "courtesy cars" to meet trains and to show the visitors points of interest in the city.

Heads Women's Committee

Mrs. O. C. McCurdy was named chairwoman of a committee in charge of the reception of women. Parking of automobiles will be handled by a committee in charge of Hayes Maynard. Other committees to look after details of the reception were also named.

The public reception in The Star auditorium at 7:30 p. m. today will be the only session of the convention the public will be invited to attend.

Other highlights of the program tonight besides the address by Mr. Caton are an address of welcome by Mayor L. Don Jones, a talk by Fred E. Guthery in behalf of the Chamber of Commerce, and the appearance of the Canto club and the Marion Civic orchestra in a series of musical numbers.

"Welcome Grangers" are the words inscribed on large placards adorning the "white way" light posts in the uptown section this morning, as Marion dressed up for the convention.

Decorative Christmas lights will be turned on for the first time tonight as the convention gets under way. All uptown streets have been cleaned, according to D. J. Harlow, service director.

Convention visitors unable to find housing in Marion hotels are being cared for in private homes.

Headquarters At Harding

CHICAGO MAN KILLED, SON HURT, BY BOMB

Explosive Disguised as Birthday Present Received from Unknown Source.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Dec. 8—An explosion of a powerful bomb contained in an innocent looking package opened by a boy to satisfy his yuletide curiosity, caused the death early today of Tony May, professional bondsman and money lender, one time known as the "millionaire news boy." LEADERS OF MAJORS HOLD MID-WINTER CONFAB IN NEW YORK

Chain-Store Baseball May Be Subject of Tirade by Commissioner Landis.

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 — Baseball's leaders gathered here today for the annual mid-winter meeting of the National and American leagues. The selective draft, chain-store baseball, and the lively ball threatened to cause the most discussion.

Although formal sessions of the two leagues begin tomorrow, two important conferences were on today's program. One of them was to bring together representatives of major league clubs and a committee from the minors for a discussion of the draft dispute. The other was a meeting of American league managers called by the league president, Ernest Barnard, to hear suggestions that might be of benefit to the league as a whole.

May Reach Compromise

There was a distince feeling among baseball men in general that the majors and the five non-draft leagues would reach a compromise some time this week.

The majors want the five non-draft leagues to accept the universal draft, that is, they want to be able to "select" any player from those circuits—the International, Pacific Coast, American Association, Western and Three-Eye leagues—at a fixed price just as they do from other minor league clubs. This principle the minors are ready to accept, it is stated, provided the two groups can agree on terms.

Pending settlement of the dispute, the majors on Dec. 1 severed all business dealings with the five affected leagues.

Lively Ball Is Topic

The lively ball has split the major league owners and managers into three distinct camps and all three probably will have lots to say before the meetings come to an end. One group favors the ball as it is; another includes those who would deaden the ball to end the home-run epidemic; still another would keep the ball as it is but end "pop-fly home runs" by limiting hits into certain sections to two or three bases where they now go for home runs.

The chain store system of baseball ownership came in for only desultory discussion at the minor league convention in Montreal last week but there seemed to be a suspicion in some quarters that Kenesaw M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, was prepared to deliver another blast against it some time during the week.

IRISH ENROUTE HOME AFTER 27-0 VICTORY

Rockne's Men Surprise Grid World by Overwhelming Southern California.

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8—Knute Rockne's raiders from Notre Dame, having swept Southern California aside, were enroute home today with two undefeated seasons, 19 straight victories, and a 27 to 0 triumph over the Trojans to their credit.

In addition the Irish had permanent possession of the Rissman trophy, signifying that three times within a decade Notre Dame had produced the national football champions.

Meanwhile, Southern California and the far west were recovering from the stunning blow the Irish delivered Saturday, and experts, coaches and the 90,000 fans who saw Troy fall vied with each other in congratulating the victors.

Frank Carideo, the quarterback, Paul "Bucky" O'Connor, the fullback, Marchmont Schwartz, halfback, and Bert Metzger, the atom who grew to a giant in the eyes of the crowd during 60 minutes of play at guard, were hailed far and wide.

Carideo's generalship was a big factor in the humbling of the Trojans, and to him went the honor of scoring the first touchdown. He took a pass from Schwartz and half-walked eight yards to pay dirt.

O'Connor was the individual star. Three days before he had been a substitute halfback, although Rockne explained he spent six weeks in spring practice in the fullback berth. Saturday he was an amazing fullback. From his own 20-yard line in the first quarter he carried the ball, which he received from Marty Brill, halfback, on a reverse 80 yards for the second touchdown, passing at the halfway mark to out-dodge Ernie Pinckert, the Trojans' star halfback. In the third quarter he scored again after receiving a pass.

Nicholas Lukats, a substitute back, whirled over 23 yards of Trojan-strewn turf for the final score.

Schwartz contributed 50 yards towards the third touchdown with a long zig-zagging run.

Southern California never seriously threatened the Notre Dame goal. As many as four times the Trojans dug shallowly into Irish soil, but the advance was halted abruptly in each case.

LOOP MAY DISBAND

American Basketball League's Future To Be Discussed at Meeting in Cleveland.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Dec. 8—The future of the American Basketball league was up for a decision at a meeting of representatives of the seven clubs in the circuit here today.

President John J. O'Brien of New York called the conference after Max Rosenblum, owner of the world's champion Cleveland team, denied reports that his crew would be withdrawn and the league disbanded. Rosenblum, however, did not say just what action Cleveland would take.

Attendance figures have fallen off this winter and the Cleveland club blames this in part on the new rule against the pivot play as the champions had developed it.

ONLY TWO REGULARS AVAILABLE FOR OHIO WESLEYAN QUINTET

Coach Detrick Must Fill Big Hole at Center; Team Opens at Heidelberg.

By Brush-Moore Leased Wire

DELAWARE, Dec. 8—With but two regulars from last year's championship basketball team available, Coach Ray Detrick of Ohio Wesleyan must build an entirely new combination.

Russell Facchini, Alliance, guard, and Eric Gandrup, Rocky River, forward, are the two regulars around whom the Battling Bishops quintet must be built, while three other lettermen, Donald Malone, Cleveland, guard; Vincent Schubert, Sandusky, forward; and Howard Ginaven, Springfield, guard, are also available. Forrest Campbell, Delaware, forward, who saw some service with last year's team, is another possibility.

Sophomore recruits are numerous and include several good players although no real stars have been discovered to date. Wilmer Dickerson, Adena; Roy Bennett, Dayton, and George Munson, Cincinnati, all of whom earned letters with the Bishop football team this fall, are included among the sophomore prospects.

Forwards Scarce

The Bishops have an abundance of guards but are weak on men who can shoot baskets. Good forwards are scarce and an even greater problem is found at center where Floyd Siegenthaler, Alliance, for three years an all-Ohio center, must be replaced. So great is the difficulty at center that Coach Detrick is seriously considering shifting Gandrup who was rated last year as one of the best forwards in the Buckeye conference, to the center position. Dickerson, Bolton and Myerley are the other three possibilities at center.

Ohio Wesleyan will open its 20-game schedule against Heidelberg at Tiffin Dec. 20 and will spend a week barnstorming during the Christmas holidays.

Here's Schedule

The Ohio Wesleyan schedule will be as follows: Heidelberg at Tiffin, Dec. 20; Goodyear at Akron, Dec. 30; University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, Dec. 31; Michigan State college at E. Lansing, Jan. 1; Manchester College at North Manchester, Ind., Jan. 2; University of Chicago at Chicago, Jan. 3; DePauw University, Jan. 5; University of Dayton, Jan. 7.

Miami university at Oxford, Jan. 10; Ohio university, Jan. 12; University of Cincinnati at Cincinnati, Jan. 17; Denison university at Granville, Jan. 21; Western Reserve university at Cleveland, Jan. 24; University of Dayton at Dayton, Jan. 31; Miami university, Feb. 3; Muskingum college at New Concord, Feb. 7; Ohio university at Athens, Feb. 11; University of Cincinnati, Feb. 14; Denison university, Feb. 18; Western Reserve university, Feb. 21.

Ohio U. Basketball Prospects Not Bright

ATHENS, Dec. 8—Ohio university's Bobcats may be twice champions of the Buckeye conference in football but there is nothing but gloom before Coach B. T. Grover as the Ohioans begin training for a 16-game basketball schedule.

With only one regular from last year's team available, John Trace of Zanesville, the Bobcats appear destined for a poor showing in the title race this season. Coach Grover will have to depend entirely on last year's substitutes and very meagre sophomore material.

CHARITY CONTEST BILLED FOR YANKEE STADIUM THIS WEEK

Middies Show Unsuspected Strength in Victory Over Pennsylvania.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 8—The most famous of football's spectacles, the Army-Navy game, resumed for charity after a four-year break, comes Saturday to give a final touch of color to the waning football season.

It will be played at the Yankee stadium, New York, for the benefit of the Salvation Army's unemployment relief fund.

Navy's triumph over Pennsylvania Saturday has increased interest in the game. The midshipmen showed unsuspected strength as they gave the Quakers a 26 to 0 beating.

A victory over Penn still is not enough to place Navy on a par with its rival in the pre-game calculations. Although the middies showed plenty of power and new reserve force, they have had only a mediocre season and beat a team which had had little more success. Army was beaten only by Notre Dame and tied by Yale.

Colgate still holds the topmost position among the big colleges through Saturday's 7-6 victory over New York university.

Western Maryland alone holds the distinction of being the east's only undefeated team. It defeated Maryland, 7 to 0, Saturday for its ninth victory of the season. It has been tied once but have not lost a game since 1928.

MANSFIELD TO MEET INDUS FIVE TONIGHT

Game Will Be Played on Shovel Floor; Local Team Suffers First Loss at Defiance.

Having suffered their first defeat of the season Saturday night at the hands of Defiance college at Defiance by a 35 to 26 score, the Shovel Y-Indus cagers tonight will attempt to get back into the winning column when they meet the Mansfield Ex His on the Steam Shovel floor.

The visitors are made up of former Mansfield High school stars and are practically the same team which defeated Harding High, 18 to 17, here in 1928, while many of the present Indus players were members of the Harding team of that year.

The game will be started at 8:15 p. m. and will be preceded by a preliminary between the Marion Business College and the Harding vocational team at 7:15 p. m., the second game of a series between the two.

Marion was handicapped at Defiance Saturday night by the loss of Lockwood, center. The Defiance team was made up of veterans, all of whom were rangy. Defiance for the last two years has won the Northwestern Ohio conference basketball title.

Gillis and Roush led the Indus team in scoring with seven points each and Osterholt, at center, made six. Heishman was Defiance's high man with 10 points.

Defiance led at the half, 19 to 15, and after the Y-Indus crept to within two points of tying the score in the second half, the college boys began tossing them in from the middle of the floor to pile up a big lead.

Steel sold off 1¾ points, then rallied.

Weakness of the rail shares seemed to be merely a continuation of the downward movement of the previous week. News of the interstate commerce commissions order seeking to force Pennsylvania to divest itself of its interest in the Lehigh & Wabash could scarcely have been regarded as an aggravating factor, since it had been expected for some time.

Selling of the oil shares has been in response to Wall Street rumors of further price reductions. Although pronounced progress has been made in curtailment of crude output, this is the low consumption season, and the industry is still unsettled. The first nine months earnings statement of Richfield, showing a deficit of about $470,000, after payment of preferred dividends, presented a revealing commentary on the situation, the company explained that the crude production curtailment program had obliged it to close about 45 per cent of its output, and purchase in the market nearly 70 per cent of its requirements.

GRAIN PRICES MOVE LOWER

Dearth of Buying Orders Brings Decline in Corn and Wheat Averages.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Dec. 8—Wheat and corn averaged lower early today on dearth of buying orders except from government-sponsored sources. Unfavorable harvest weather conditions both in Australia and Argentina failed to act as a counter balance.

Opening 1⅛@1¼ off, to ⅛@¼ up, Chicago wheat later held steady. Corn started at 1⅛ decline to ⅜ advance and subsequently showed a general set back.

Enlarged stocks of wheat in Great Britain counted as a bearish factor, furthermore world shipment showed a decided increase compared with last week and a year ago. Purchasing attributed chiefly to the Grain Stabilization Corporation a farm board ally, continued to hold May wheat at 81c and 81½c for old and new style contracts respectively.

The market made no apparent response to an official estimate that as much at 236,000,000 bushels of domestic wheat would be fed to livestock this season.

This estimate was the highest yet mentioned by public or private experts. It was based on reports from farmers, feed manufacturers and poultry men. Last year the government reported only 90,000,000 bushels was used as feed. Corn and oats values gave way with wheat.

Provisions held about steady in the absence of important selling

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Another step in one of the most radical series of retail egg price drops in many months was reported Saturday afternoon when eggs lost another two cents on the dozen. Wholesale prices were cut two cents all around, while retail prices in some stores were held up to early Saturday quotations until the supply on hand had been moved.

The new price range is 28 to 34 cents a dozen.

Butter prices are due for a gain this week. Local prices are controlled by Chicago markets, which were selling from one to two cents higher than local quotations Saturday.

HUGE WHEAT STOCK USED FOR FEEDING

Estimate 236,000,000 Bushels for Year; Last Year's Total Only 90,000,000.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8—The amount of wheat to be fed to livestock this year was estimated today by the department of agriculture as 236,000,000 as compared with 90,000,000 bushels last year.

The department said the low price of wheat, feed grains and commercial feeds relative to prices of both livestock and livestock products are resulting in unusually heavy feeding.

The estimate was compiled from a survey including wheat fed by non-growers and used in the preparation and manufacture of feeds in addition to that fed on farms.

The supply of wheat for the 1930-31 season was estimated at 1,115,000,000 bushels.

Women To Take Leading Part in Grange Meeting

Fifty Per Cent of Visitors Here During State Session To Be of Feminine Sex; Special Conferences Arranged for Lecturers, Deputy Matrons.

Women of the nearly 800 granges in Ohio, will play a large part in the activities of the grange program at the state convention here this week. Fifty per cent of the several thousand grangers expected to begin arriving in Marion Tuesday, will be women.

Tuesday and Wednesday will be full days for the feminine grangers of the state. Although the office of lecturer in the granges is open to both men and women, it is the general rule to elect women to the position. The office calls for the holder to arrange for all programs.

Joseph Fichter of Hamilton county, state lecturer, will preside at lecturers' conferences Tuesday and Wednesday at First Presbyterian church. The first meeting will be Tuesday at 10 a. m. and after a noon adjournment again at 4 p. m. At 6 p. m. the lecturers' banquet will be held.

Two meetings are scheduled for Wednesday, at 8 a. m. and 4 p. m. and for Thursday at 8 a. m.

Another office which is solely a woman's position is that of deputy matron. There is one deputy matron for each county grange organization in the state, and these matrons will convene Wednesday at [illegible] a. m. at the Elks lodge rooms.

Mrs. E. C. Bell of Denison and Mrs. Walter F. Kirk of Port Clinton will be in charge of this meeting. Following lunch, the group will meet at 4 p. m. to witness an exemplification of the juvenile degree, put on by the Grand Prairie Juvenile Grange of Marion county. The Grand Prairie Childrens Grange was extended a special invitation by the state master, to exemplify the work.

At 6 p. m. the deputy matrons will join the deputy masters in a banquet at Hotel Harding. The last meeting of the deputy matrons will be held Thursday at 8 a. m.

Farm Prowler Held by Sheriff Francis

Marshall Cook, colored, was arrested last night by Sheriff John J. Francis following a call to the Guthery farm on the Agosta pike, where Cook and another man, who fled, were captured by John Green, tenant of the farm.

Green caught the two men prowling on the premises after he had kept a vigil since dusk. He had missed 30 bushels of corn Saturday night.

A charge of trespassing probably will be filed against Cook today, it was said.

Sheep Claims Totaling $140 Are Filed Here

Sheep claims totaling $140 were filed with county commissioners Saturday by six Marion county farmers through County Dog Warden Dale Rhoads.

They are J. D. Chard of Green Camp township, who asks $12; P. F. Roth of Claridon township, $4; W. J. Schwader of Claridon township, $32; C. W. Baldinger of Claridon township, $50; Ed Jones of Prospect township, $6, and Harry Smith of Big Island township, $36.

Rhoads impounded four dogs during the week.

BAR NORMAN THOMAS ON COLLEGE CAMPUS

Wooster Trustees Object To Proposed Talk by Socialist Leader.

Norman Thomas, progressive leader and Socialist candidate for President in 1928 and a former Marion man, has been barred from speaking to the students of Wooster college in any college building, it was announced today, United Press reports say.

Thomas was invited to give the Washington's birthday address to the Congressional club, a student organization, meetings of which are conducted in the form of U. S. congressional sessions.

When it was announced that the club had invited Thomas to speak, some students objected to him because of his views.

This caused officers of the student club to take the matter before the college trustees. The trustees then issued a statement that it felt sure Thomas' speaking on the campus "would be misinterpreted and exploited to the injury of the college."

So the club changed the place of the meeting to the city opera house. Club officers pointed out that the invitation to Thomas did not imply agreement with his views, but that in line with the policy of having some outstanding leader speak to them on this occasion, they thought Thomas' side should be given hearing this year.

... Helena Brixton. I was ... at the time she ... the farmhouse for ... reunion with ... good, loyal to ... she possessed the ... so many beautiful ... desire to show how attractive men considered her. She was too high-minded, or too prudently fearful of reciprocal measures, to try her wiles on another woman's husband, but to her Philip Veritzen was fair game, and when I had heard of his frequent calls at The Larches, I had surmised that she valued those visits as much for the essentially false supposition that they were filched from me, and valued by me, as for her natural pleasure in acting as hostess to so famous a man as the great theatrical producer.

It was not a pleasant vision, this, which I had of the hidden depths of my own soul. That no emotion save vanity was involved, did not lessen my disgust at myself. While I gave outward attention to the curtain problems of Mrs. Ticer, and other details which were brought to me in the next few minutes, I held court on myself with such success that I was able to feel no slightest twinge of even wounded vanity when Helena came up to me a little later with Philip Veritzen at her side.

"I've just been telling Mr. Veritzen," she said, prettily, "that I'm afraid we're in the way down here. Everybody's so busy, and you all know just what to do, while we're all at sea. Besides, your father and Mr. Graham's mother are up there alone, save for our dancing young people, who are paying no attention to anybody but themselves, you may be sure. I thought you wouldn't mind if we went up and talked to them a bit."

A Flattering Title

Was there a bit of malice, conscious or unconscious, in that apparently innocuous phrase, "I thought you wouldn't mind"? I could not tell, but I had my answer ready as soon as she finished speaking.

"How wonderfully thoughtful!" I said, and knew that I was only recognizing a truth. She is given to just such generous impulses. "You're not in the way, however, down here, but I do believe you two can help us best in keeping Mother Graham from getting restless. She says she does not want to see the playroom until it is all finished but I know my father is anxious to get down here. You will solve a problem for him."

"I am so glad," Mrs. Brixton said, enthusiastically. "Come along, Prine Phhilip. Remember, you're the captain of this rescue party."

I stared after her for a startled fraction of a second. "Prince Philip," indeed!

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

YESTERDAY was Sunday when I woke up and me and Jubilee had some solemn thoughts. They were about Christmas. I have got no more money than the Lost Bag of Tripe has sense or a frog has hair. Money is funny. It is only pieces of paper, and metal that is dug out of the ground, but it certainly gets things. A piece of paper that isn't any bigger than a brick can be traded for an automobile that is big enough for a family to ride in, and a piece of metal or two pieces of metal can be traded to a railroad for a ride away down South. But the metal is gold. My grandfather has got a pocket piece made out of gold that he got over in Mexico once when he went over to see if he had better lick that country while he had his hand in. It is fifty pay-sos, and is a lot of money. I think pay-so is a good name for money. It means something. He didn't lick Mexico. Mexico don't know how lucky it is.

I let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth, and put on my britches and went down and got my milk pail and went out to milk the dummed brutes and the bunch was there. If the cows hadn't been there I would have got done sooner. When I went in to feed my face Youniss and Maggie and Feeble were there, and they were talking about Nibs being asleep so long from the conclusion he got from Mealy's slay, and I said I would think he would starve, and my mother said they fed him artificially. I said if I had knowed that I could have tooken him the artificial pears and apples and bananas and plums made out of wax we have got on the china closet, and everyone laughed. I didn't think it was funny. I got washed by my ant. My face will be glad when she gets old and feeble. It can't ever raise whiskers as long as she is washing it. Sunday school was cold, so when the super told us all about how hot hell is it didn't seem such a bad place. But I'm not going there anyhow.

Today was Monday and the girls came to our house after school, and my mother had rolled out some dough for pie crust, and when she went in the other room Feeble took the dough and put it on her head and pinched the edges together on top to see what kind of a hat it would make, so my mother used it to make punpin pie for us kids. We were lucky. But my mother wasn't so well pleased as we were. My ant said it was an outrage. Jubilee was glad when I let down his rope and pulled him up and wrapped him in my coat and put him in bed. I am afraid he is a spoiled dog. I would rather he would be spoiled than froze.

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, Dec. 9

UNDER the high solar stimulus to the planet Mars, orbs of initiative, boldness, resourcefulness and aggressiveness, virile and turbulent, there should be lively conditions to manipulate, especially in the direction of new plans, projects and adventures. These should be met with decision and prudence, if they be of personal initiative or enterprise, as matters in connection with employers or subject to dictation, are under adverse astral influence.

Those whose birthday it is are encouraged to go ahead on their own initiative during the year, as things of employment are not encouraging. New personal projects and propositions are under stimulus and promise of success. A child born on this day should be bold, enterprising and resourceful, and should make a good success of all that it espouses of its own initiative. In employment it might encounter friction and difficulties.

60 AT GUEST MEETING

MT. GILEAD, Dec. 8—Approximately 60 members of the D. A. R. and other guests attended the guest meeting of the organization held Friday night at the home of Mrs. W. B. Robinson. Assistant hostesses were Mrs. Thomas Mack of Cardington and Mrs. O. C. Romans of Mt. Gilead.

LEADS ANOTHER OKLAHOMA "RUN"

Sam Bartell, who dashed into Oklahoma territory when it was opened to settlers in 1889 led a 1930 "run" to a stretch of land in the heart of Oklahoma City that had been abandoned by a railroad. Bartell is shown staking out a claim. He contends the land reverted to the federal government when the road moved off.

Treasurer Must Apportion Part Tax Payments to Two Funds.

Taxpayers cannot make payments on regular taxes without paying on their special assessments at the same time, County Treasurer Bert J Shelton said today following receipt of a supreme court ruling in a case brought against the treasurer of Summit county

The ruling holds that special assessments are in the same class with regular taxes and that one cannot be paid without making payment on the other according to Shelton's interpretation. In past years tax money first was paid on regular taxes and the remainder on special assessments

"The supreme court held in the Summit county case that special assessment are taxes like any other taxes and that it is mandatory for a treasurer to apply tax payments on both regular taxes and special assessments at the same time," Shelton said

"In the past taxpayers dre paid their regular taxes and then took their time to pay the special assessments but such a procedure cannot be followed out in the future"

The county treasurer pointed out that tax payments in the future will be applied proportionately to the regular fees and to the assessments For instance, if regular taxes amount to $20 and assessments to $30 and a taxpayer tenders the treasurer only part of the total taxes two-fifths of the payment would be applied on the regular taxes and the remaining three-fifths on the assessments

Taxpayers who wish to pay regular taxes without paying special assessments can do so only if they obtain a court injunction restraining the treasurer from collecting the assessments, Shelton pointed out

The court's ruling will facilitate collection of assessments in the future, the treasurer believes

Will Finds America and England With Same Ideas on Conferences; They Quiet Noises of Public Discord

Spree with Royalty Ends with Alibi About "Not Being Ready."

BY WILL ROGERS

WELL all I know is just what I read in the papers Been reading a lot about India lately on account of this Conference they have been holding in London. When India gets a little uneasy and unruly why England gives them a Conference They invite em all to London, and the King meets em and they have a few public functions and they all wear their turbans and baggy silk pants and all are allowed to make speeches and the papers make over em, and they go home

They come for freedom and go home with press notices They are pretty near like American tax payers in that respect, just give em a little voice some time, and make em think they are getting someplace and they go home happy Well this last one in London was the biggest one in a long time, for the unrest was the biggest 'Conferences are always in proportion in public discord

The King made a public speech to em just like he did for the nations at the Disarmament Conference last January. You know those English are smart, they know how to handle more different kinds of people than anybody. Now we cant do that, thats why we are no good as Colonizers But Britain can go in anywhere and they got all the pomp and glory that most Natives like Then they are smart enough to always make them think they are doing part of the management of their country themselves When as a matter of fact they wont be doing anything, but they can be made to look like it

'Borahs" of India

Now this Indian Conference with over 50 Indian Princes, controlling over half of India—well for them to get to London and be made over by Royalty and the British Government why that just sits them off pretty for another few years. Course they are not looking for complete Independence for India, for that would do away with their own feudal power for each one of those Babies where he comes from is the "Borah" of the hills Bill on his native heath never had any more power than they do Some of this birds rule over a municipality as big as one of our big States like New York

The same old alibi

All the taxes and toll are paid to them individually, they don't have to be bothered with an election every four years to see who is the head man He is born the head man and stays "Him" till he passes out.

Some of em coming to London brought their wives They not only kept them veiled, but when they went out through the loby of the Hotel they had attendants on each side, back and front of them with a screen affair, where they could not be seen. If they went to a Theater they had the box screened in so that they could see out but anyone else couldent look in and see them I remember seeing one of em at a Polo Game with her Husband the Marajah of some kind of "Singh," was playing and his wife was in a big Rolls Royce all boxed in like a furniture truck and she has a peep hole she could watch the old Rajah caper around but nobody couldent look in and see her This was a game over in London But I can imagine what London is when there is about fifty Retinues of these there at once Each one would try and naturally outdo the other, so they all brought a band of Coolies with em They can wear more gold braid than a Movie King of a mythical Kingdom Why Ill bet their pajamas they sleep in looks like a Bull Fighters braided rompers

Things Begin To Look Better

India is full of casts They got more Castes than we have Commissions They got one cast that is called the "Untouchables" they are not even allowed to let their shadow fall across one of the upper classes We cant imagine it over here for we just have two or three different ones, the Republicans and the Democrats. The Democrats have always occupied our lowest position They could let their shadow fall anywhere, but in an selected official position, they were kinder like the "Untouchables" They just had to live from pillar to post and eke out any existence they could find But it looks like here lately the lower caste with us is coming to the front, and in London there was two Untouchables at the Conference with the others So along about 1932 it looks like Serf days will be over and the lower classes will go to the top

This fellow Ghandi wasent there I think they got him in jail again When there aint any more news from India why the English are jailing Ghandi He is an odd kind of a duck, we havent got anyone over here to in any way compare with him. He is looked on as a kind of a prophet I guess Coolidge would come nearer fitting him in that respect than anyone else Then he is a Preacher too, kinder like Bishop Cannon when he was feeling good and at himself—sorter combined Politics and preaching But Ghandi always preached 'No violence" He always said agree to everything England wants but dont do it, sort of a synthetic resistance.

Ghandi Would Be President

In build and physique from the looks of his pictures, we haven't got anybody like him unless it is Will Hays Bill is set up a good deal like Ghandi from the architectual sandpoint. He has got a following a good deal like William Jennings Bryan used to have. They sure believe in him. We haven't got anyone that has a following comparable to him here now If either one of our "Classes" had one like him, they would run em for President. Well anyhow they dident take him to the Conference, he would have stole all the thunder from the gold Turbaned Rajahs.

Now Britain aint going to give them any more "Home rule" but we are going to give the Farmers relief They will just have a ... time and all go home and use the old Alabi like we do with the Philippines. "You are not ready for your Independence yet"

When we get ours if history ... an awful ... we are ... in such shape to ... You ... ... but you are not ... eat yet"

CHAPTER 24

A Moment of Weakness

WHEN the party was at its height, Bob Daniels appeared suddenly at Fanny's elbow, dressed in a shapeless white gown and completely masked with a grinning death's head Fanny did not recognize him until he whispered his identity to her.

"You didn't think, did you, that I would go away without a good-by" he asked while they were dancing

"I didn't know. I felt dreadfully abused. Are you actually going to night?"

"I actually am. My car's outside with my trunk strapped on the back. Leila got suspicious--kept such a watch on me I had to let it down out of my window by a rope—and shin down myself." He laughed gleefully.

"I ought to scold you," said Fanny, "but I can't. I don't believe you are much over seven years old"

She was immediately happier now that Bob had not gone off without a word of farewell. Her black depression, which she had been fighting hectically all evening, showed a silver edge; at least she was of paramount importance to someone

A passing waiter cached a tray of glasses filled with champagne behind a palm and Fanny drank one glass, then two It was such a good joke on the waiter A little later she made no objection when Bob guided her through a side door down the steps and along the path to the sunken garden.

The little garden might itself have been a ghost in the moonlight—the ghost of a more romantic, more fanciful, more mettlesome age An ancient figure of Pan played on his pipes and watched them covertly To Fanny he seemed to be laughing to himself, mocking their youth and dreams and trivial gropings after the stars

"Do you know what that old boy is saying?" asked Bob taking Fanny's hand

"Tell me"

"He says that he is incredibly old and incredibly wise, that he has outlived all the old gods and will outlive all the new His message to us is to snatch at the rose buds as they come our way to eat and drink and laugh and love our fill while there is still spring in our heart for autumn is just around the corner and our backs soon will be bowed and our blood run cold

"My blood's running ice this minute—and I dont like your old friend Take me back, said Fanny

"In a minute—do stay a minute" Bob coaxed

She could never recall very clearly that quarter of an hour There was a haze over everything—she had to fight to find her thoughts to speak clearly But it did not matter Bob would take care of her The truth is—there is no use beating around the bush—that Fanny had had too much champagne

When Bob assured her that she loved him—loved him without knowing it—she accepted it as a fact Hadnt she been wretched desolate all evening? Undoubtedly as Bob said it was because she had never expected to see him again It was true too, as Bob pointed out, that David did not love her, that neither he nor she was happy; that their marriage was one long mistake She began to cry

Bob covered her hand with kisses, comforted her—weeping with pity for David—murmured endearments, dried her tears and drew her close, assuring her gently that if she loved him, loved him even a little, there was no shadow of a reason why everyone should not be happy Leila's and David's pride might be a little hurt at first, but Fanny could not imagine that either would be hurt deeply.

All the time there was beating, beating through Fanny's mind, just below all these other thoughts, the thought of Sheila her baby She did not want to face it, but it was there like heartbeats.

Bob went on urging Tomorrow a ship sailed from New York to Mexico And in Mexico anyone could be divorced in two weeks. In two weeks they would be free—everybody free, everybody happy. As Bob told it, it sounded extremely simple and reasonable. By going to Mexico with Bob, Fanny could make David happy—set him free.

"But of course, there's Sheila," Fanny protested.

Bob argued that only by summoning courage to break away would Fanny ever be able to give Sheila the happy childhood which was her due When Fanny was free Sheila's life would no longer be poisoned by the breath of strife and the tyranny of David's mother.

129 WILD BEAUTY -p

Now Fanny listened with a new sense of Bob's wisdom; she followed his words as in dreams we accept some formula that seems to explain the universe Bob had thought of everything He told how once he and Fanny were married he could come back steal Sheila and spirit her over the border to Canada. Fanny insisted that they take Sheila along in the first place but Bob said firmly that was impossible

Fanny still hesitated, held even in her befogged state by the dread of separation from her child Bob asked her curtly if she did not love Sheila enough to run a little risk for her? Or was she willing that Sheila should spend all her young formative years hampered and ... and curbed by a thousand ancient prejudices by petty stifling regulations? Heavens above did she want Sheila to be a Brownbeck?

That was the final argument Fanny did not want Sheila to be a Brownbeck She would free David rescue Sheila make Bob happy—everybody happy except herself But what did it matter about herself? David didnt love her David didnt want her Nobody wanted her but Bob Bob led her to the car sobbing and clinging wildly to him

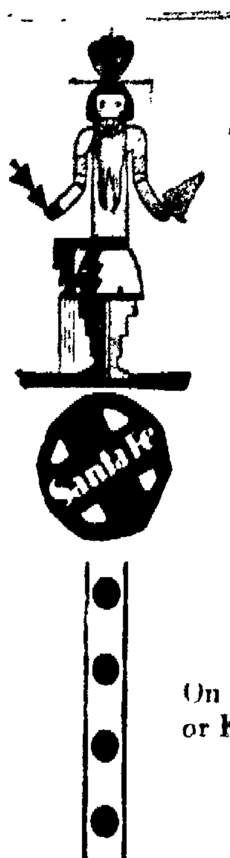

Five minutes later wrapped to the eyes in furs they were speeding down the long white track of the state road It was glorious—Fanny laughed out loud Forty 50 60 miles an hour—bathed in moonlight between walls of black and leafless trees which lined the way steadily What did anything matter but this? This was love She was in love with Bob—and had not known till now She wanted to scream aloud that she was free—free of the Brownbecks Forever and ever! Faster faster! Seventy miles Oh the fun of running away!

If experts in agriculture, and then farmers themselves were in a time of normal financial conditions there would be no question but what an increase would be noticed within the next year or year and a half. But in view of the acute need for money in many sections of the hog feeding area, there will be a tendency to sell hogs rather than retain them for breeding herds.

A year ago the Ohio corn-hog ratio was only 10.5 and the Iowa ratio was 11.5. As it took ten bushels of corn per 100 pounds of hogs there was little profit in feeding hogs last year but there is a saving this year of from two to four bushels of corn, which means that much added profit.

Ohio corn averaged on Nov. 15 at the farm 67 cents a bushel, and wheat was reported by the government at 75 cents a bushel. The average oats price was only 33 cents and the rye average was 63 cents a bushel.

Ohio farmers were receiving at the middle of November an average of $8.60 per 100 pounds of hogs sold. This is only 39 cents under a year ago in November and only 20 cents less than the 1926 average.

Beef Cattle Price Low

Ohio beef cattle are being sold at the farm at an average price of $7 a 100 pounds. This is the lowest average of the corn belt states, probably because of the great number of dairy cows that are retired by way of the beef route. A year ago Ohio farmers were selling cattle at an average of $9.30 per 100 pounds, and two years ago at $10.10.

Chickens are selling at 16½ and a half cents a pound and eggs averaged 36 cents at the middle of last month.

The chicken price is the highest of any of the corn belt states and the egg price is from three to ten cents higher than any of the states to the west of us.

"River Man" Is Story of Life

GLIMPSES of life on the river and the road are to be found told in an interesting way by Leonard Lupton in his novel "River Man." It is the story of a Hudson River Shanty boat and of the love affair between Jarl and Jimmy. The hero's climb from a tramp to a newspaperman proves entertaining from start in finish and a surprising turn is encountered by the reader when Jimmy tells Jarl that she has killed her husband.

Contest for Amateurs on Byrd Expedition

G. P. PUTNAM'S Sons have announced a series of special prizes to be awarded for the best letters on the subject "The Value to the Civilized World of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition." The contest is open to everyone and closes on March 2. The first three winners will be presented cash awards and a limited $50 personally inscribed edition of "Little America," Byrd's own story of the expedition. Other awards will be copies of the limited edition also personally inscribed. At the close of the contest all letters received by the contest editor will be bound and presented to Byrd as permanent tribute. The letters need not be of a technical nature nor will they be judged by their literary merit. They must simply express the writer's own idea of the value of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition.

Books for Children Tell of Far Lands

INTERESTING books for children are found in a list published by the Beckley-Cardy Co., whose selections range from readings for little tots to those of the teen-age. The stories are beautifully illustrated and many are in colors. Among the newest books for youngsters is "Tales from Story Town" by Mina Pearl Ashton. The stories are in fine big type and of such a nature that the very young children can read them. "Tambalo" the story of Tambalo and Pidu, two little dark-skinned boys of Ceylon and their two little sisters is by Alice Allison Lide and Annie H. Allison. The book also contains readable stories of children and customs of other far lands and aside from creating interest afford a lively background for history. The story of Shooting Star a mule-tail deer whose home for some time was with a forest ranger; of Split-Ear the black woolly bear and her roly-poly cubs, Snow Queen the Polar bear and many other animals familiar to children is splendidly told by Lou Villinge in "Children of Our Wilds."

He has been invited to speak before the National Geographic Society in February and other engagements are being arranged. The film, which was taken aboard the "Grace Hawar" during her heroic rounding Cape Horn and which cost the life of Villiers' companion, will accompany him here and will no doubt satisfy the curiosity already aroused by reports from England.

Hemmingway Tells Group of Stories

ERNEST HEMMINGWAY has written a number of short stories which he has placed in one volume and called "In Our Time". One of the stories tells about an Indian woman whose husband kills himself; another of a prize fighter and a Negro fry ham together along the railroad track; some tell briefly the stories of the brutality of the old Northwest and others tell stories of life. The sketches are brief and brutal for the most part and deal mostly with war anecdotes.

JUPITER, BRIGHT IN EARLY EVENING, MOVES WEST IN DECEMBER SKY

BY ROBERT H. BAKER
(Professor of Astronomy, University of Illinois)
By The Associated Press

URBANA, Ill.—The planet Jupiter is conspicuous in the eastern sky in the early evening during December. It rises in the northeast at 7 o'clock on the first of the month.

Coming into view about four minutes earlier from night to night it can be seen as early as 5 p. m. at the end of the month.

Jupiter is now in the constellation Gemini, the Twins, and not far south of the bright stars Castor and Pollux.

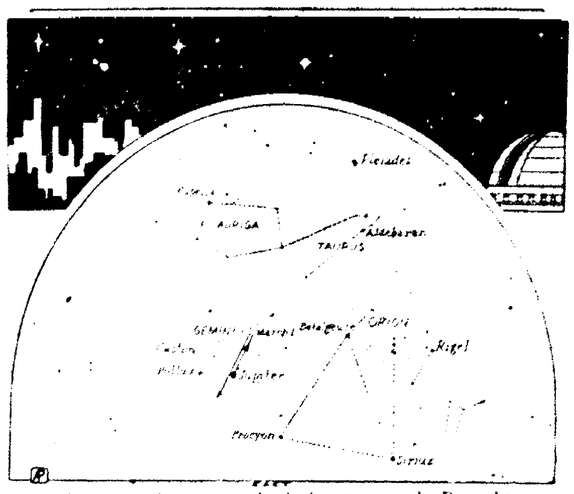

Once the planet is easy to find. After it has been identified it should prove interesting to watch, once a week, to notice how it is moving with respect to the stars.

Traveling West

The planet is now moving westward across Gemini and will continue to move in that direction until the first of March. Then it will turn and move toward the east, passing its present position about June 1, and hastening on into the adjoining constellation Cancer.

Jupiter is the largest of the planets and is more massive than all the others combined. With the exception of Venus and occasionally Mars, it is the brightest.

Moreover, its day is the shortest, being less than 10 hours. In order to turn around in so short a time a point at the equator must whirl at the rate of 27,000 miles an hour.

This is how the eastern sky looks on an early December evening. The position of Jupiter is shown together with the path it will travel through the constellation Gemini during the coming winter and spring.

Easily Viewed

Even a small telescope gives an interesting view of this great planet and shows four of its satellites—Jupiter has nine in all.

The four bright satellites appear like stars in the telescope, rapidly changing their positions as they revolve around the planet. Two of them are about the size of our moon; two are 50 per cent larger than the moon.

[illegible]s expressed by Blake [illegible] past president of the [illegible]tion of Elks, was the [illegible] memorial service con[illegible]Marion Lodge No. 32, B. [illegible]he occasion was fur[illegible] Misses Rose and Lucille [illegible]Milford Center, and the [illegible] delivered by Fred E. [illegible]ests from out of the [illegible] W. V. Ryder of Dela[illegible] deputy grand exalted ruler, and several members of the Delaware lodge.

Opens With Song

The service opened with a song "Open the Gates of the Temple" by Miss Lucile Vance accompanied at the piano by Miss Rose Vance and the memorial conducted by the following officers of the lodge: Frank Wiedemann Jr., exalted ruler; Carter F. Patton, esteemed leading knight; Cecil R. Leavens, esteemed loyal knight; Vernon M. Dutton, esteemed lecturing knight; Jesse Kleinmaier, esquire; Edward Huggins, secretary; James Wark, chaplain. Other officers occupying chairs were T. A. O'Leary, past exalted ruler; Harry Ackerman, inner guard; W. F. Bull, tyler; William Dowler, organist; Kenneth Tobin, treasurer.

Mr. Guthery told of the organization of the Elks lodge in 1868 and gave as its foundation the lodge's principles of fidelity, charity, justice and brotherly love. "Fidelity enfolds the principles of justice, charity and brotherly love and keeps us loyal and faithful to the work of our order," he said.

Lauds War Dead

Mr. Cook opened his address with a tribute to those members of the order who gave their lives for their country and cited the memorial erected along the banks of Lake Michigan as a lasting shrine to their memory.

"The recollection today is not restricted to those who died in battle," he said, "but to all those who have fought with us to carry out our noble ideal."

The speaker offered for comparison the man whose life is spent in pursuit of wealth, who will go to his grave unwept and unsung, the man who sees fame as the answer to life, the man who looks at life as a playground and the man who goes about life regarding himself as a trustee of life, wealth and time, lifting the burdens of the unfortunates, to whom will be built a shrine forever. "Intolerance," he declared was the greatest foe we have in America today.

"The great Elkdom of today is but the lengthening shadow of our brothers in Elkdom who have gone on and the great Elkdom of tomorrow will be but the shadows of the Elks of today," he said in concluding his address.

A song, "Night Is Gone and Day Is Here" by Miss Vance and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" at the close of the service completed the program.

Members of the lodge whose deaths have occurred since the last annual memorial service are A. E. Tobin, Frank E. Smith, John D. Ryan, Streeter G. Smith, O. Harry Boyd, George B. Christian and Ben F. Blake.

The Freiburg Passion Play, a magnificent production of the story of the life of Christ, will be presented three days, Dec. 18, 19, 20 at the Ohio theater, under the auspices of What-So-Ever circle of King's Daughters.

The Freiburg Passion Play is not to be confused with the Oberammergau production. The Oberammergau players give their interpretation once every 10 years, and only in their little town of Oberammergau in Bavaria. The Freiburg Players devote their lives to the work and give it wherever they are invited, if they feel that the production can bring inspiration and a renewed faith in the story of Jesus. Every 10 years they return to Freiburg in Baden, Germany, to present their play of the Christus.

Ancestors of the present interpreters of the roles of "The Christus" and "Judas," were enacting these same roles more than a century ago. Georg Fassnacht Sr. now portrays "Judas" and his son Georg Fasnacht Jr., is the "Christus," a role he has studied since he was a small boy. Their wife and mother, Augusta Fassnacht, enacts the role of "Mary, the mother of Jesus."

The Players will not return to Freiburg until 1932, when it will be time for a performance. The last time the play was given at Freiburg, more than 60,000 Americans saw it and most of them urged that it be brought to this country.

In 1928 the company came to America, to present their play in English. In the spring of 1929 they played for six weeks at the Hippodrome theater in New York, presented by Morris Gest.

Seats will go on sale at the box office Thursday.

THEATER NEWS AND REVIEWS

NEW GERMAN STAR HANDLES FIRST ROLE IN "MOROCCO" WELL

Marlene Dietrich, Gary Cooper and Adolph Menjou in Cast.

"MOROCCO," is the story of a man, a woman and another man. Gary Cooper, Marlene (pronounced Mar-lay-na) Dietrich and Adolphe Menjou are the three principals. It is at the Palace tonight and Tuesday matinee.

Miss Dietrich, the German importation, handles her first role on the American screen very capably.

Adolphe Menjou seems to have conquered the mike, and it's good to see him back again, even if he does have to give up the woman he loves to Gary Cooper.

Cooper, a legionnaire, who loves and leaves the ladies and Dietrich, a cabaret singer, embittered of life and scorning all men, fall passionately in love. Menjou, wealthy man-of-the-world, loves her too, but Cooper wins her.

You'll enjoy the picture, except for a few shots too many of marching sholdiers.

The theater will be closed Tuesday night for the state grange convention.

JACK OAKIE AT MARION

Oakie, Ahoy! Lillian Roth, Harry Green and Eugene Pallette and the great big laugh from the eastern choruses, Jack Oakie, are in charge of entertaining you tonight and Tuesday at the Marion.

Oakie, a lightweight champion of the United States Navy is shanghaied into the fleet of Sante Cassette, a mythical island republic, to take the place of a rich slacker who must serve his country to win a $2,000,000 inheritance. Harry Green, attorney for the slacker, concocts the idea.

Oakie's experiences on board ship, where everyone thinks he's a slacker, and in assisting Pallette in inventing a machine to roll spaghetti, are made for laughs, as well as more serious moments. The plot mills around until the spaghetti roller rolls into money, and he and Lillian Roth, the captain's daughter—why finish it, you know how it ends.

A New Yorker and his wife, who have been telling their friends that their butler was a "jewel" and "without price" probably realize that they were mistaken. Anyway, jewels to the value of $55,000 disappeared at the same time that he did, indicating that his price was $55,000, or possibly less.

There will be no nationwide strike of British coal miners, the federated miners having voted 230,000 to 209,000 not to join the strike of the 85,000 miners in Scotland, and the latter and the operators have reached an agreement. Once again, it seems, Great Britain has demonstrated her ability to "muddle through."

The court which ordered four Chicago gunmen held in jail in default of bonds aggregating $1,680,000 must take seriously the press stories of how the gangsters up there are literally rolling in wealth.

The British Labor government has rejected the plan of giving a double dole this month as a Christmas present to Britain's jobless, who have increased in number at the rate of ninety an hour, day and night, ever since the MacDonald government took office eighteen months ago. As it is, the British dole is sufficiently large to estop hundreds of thousands from seeking work.

Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, calls American colleges "breeding grounds for athletics and nursing-homes for society blooms," holding that they care more for amusements than learning and he predicts that, if there soon isn't a change in the trend, private universities will eventually be abandoned for state institutions "limited to the teaching of life's essentials." Well, lots worse things than that could befall the youth of America

"Steel Shows the Way."

The announcement by the steel industry that it will increase prices, on the average, five cents a hundred pounds for finished steel, effective for deliveries in the first quarter of 1931, opens a field for conjecture. Steel is held to be the index to American conditions; the iron and steel industry has the most valuable output of all manufacturing enterprises, accounting for approximately ten per cent. of manufactures by volume.

The decision to increase steel prices in the face of the depression, which has affected the steel industry directly, probably was produced by consideration of two factors. The first, and most obvious, is that most steel companies may have been unable to produce profitably at their old price levels The second, not so obvious, is that an increase in prices may actually stimulate orders.

The explanation for this effect is found in the attitude of the market When prices are falling, the customer waits for them to go lower. When prices are rising, customers are unwilling to wait until they may move higher. They buy on the rising markets, in other words

The steel industry is in an advantageous position to raise prices—more so than most other American industries Sixteen companies control from ninety-five to ninety-eight per cent of the total production. Despite the anti-trust law's ban on concerted price fixing, it is comparatively simple to arrive at such informal understandings as a rise in prices for instance In industries where mergers have not become universal there are always small producers prepared to cut prices on the larger ones which spoils the effect.

The question is will other industries follow the steel industry's lead? Will the slogan, "Steel shows the way," remain established as a business dictum? Men well grounded in the tradition of the industry are recalling now that J. Pierpont Morgan, who organized the United States Steel corporation, said in 1908 that he "had always been taught in a business way to regard the iron and steel industry as an accurate barometer to general business conditions, and likewise believed that no other power would ever exert so important a bearing on the general prosperity of America

What will happen in this case? Will steel lead in a rise?

Welcome to the State Grange.

All Marion welcomes the many visitors within the city for the annual convention of the Ohio State grange, which will open tonight with a public reception and continue over Thursday And we do not mean here any perfunctory welcome such as might be expressed but not felt, but an honest welcome on the part of the citizenship which comes from the heart

There is general local appreciation that it is there now, were there no other considerations to make it so, the gathering is to be an exceptional one. Marion has entertained many state organizations, but none with the representation which is to be present for the grange sessions, the estimate being that not less than 2,000 will be in attendance

While the reception at the Star auditorium tonight is to be the only one which will be open to the general public, there are a thousand and one ways in which our people may show their pleasure in having the Grangers of the state in the city What the sessions may produce in the way of interest and entertainment is beyond the control and knowledge alike of those outside the organization, but there is the assurance of those in charge that the program arranged for the four days will be of exceptional interest, every possible endeavor having been exerted to make it entertaining throughout

When a city is honored by a representative gathering of the importance of these annual meetings of the Ohio State grange, it goes without the saying that it is the desire of every public-spirited citizen to make those in attendance feel the interest of the citizenship in them and to leave nothing undone to make them feel so thoroughly welcome that, in departing, they will carry away with them pleasant impressions only—impressions which will dwell in their memories and awaken a desire to come back again

That's the way Marion people want the Grangers to feel while they are here, and that's the way our people want them to feel in going away We want them to return, if not as representatives of this particular organization, then of other organizations of which they are members

A resident of Seattle, Washington, has established the wonderful record of never having quarreled with his wife since their marriage thirty-eight years ago. To avoid suspicion that the Seattle man is drawing the long bow, it may be well to explain that his wife, shortly after their marriage, decided not to come to America with him and he has not seen her since Storing Gas in Abandoned Wells.

There was a time, and it was not so many years ago as to be beyond the memories of those of major years, when the waste of industry was enormous. That time is past The packers led the way in profiting from what had formerly been waste until it was said of them that they utilized all the hog save the squeal. Other industries fell into line, and today it is a fact that some industries are realizing greater margins of profit from their by-products than they get from their original products.

The latest bit of pioneering in the by-product line is that of the Carnegie Steel company, which is utilizing great natural rock reservoirs hundreds of feet underground for the storage of the artificial gas which is a by-product of the company, or rather of a subsidiary of the steel company, to be exact. Other companies have for years utilized gas by-products, but the subsidiary organization, the Clairton By-Product Gas company, is the first to utilize abandoned gas wells for the storage of millions of cubic feet of by-product gas obtained from the manufacture of coke.

The gas produced at the Clairton coke ovens is piped through a forty-eight-inch main to the Carnegie mills in Homestead, Braddock and other localities, and used as fuel What must be the volume of the gas produced may be figured when it is stated that the forty-eight-inch main used by the company has over fifty times the capacity of the eight-inch main which supplies gas to this city. The reader will note that we say supplies gas to this city, rather than supplies the city with gas. There's a distinction, as most local gas consumers have reason to know.

The excess gas, not used by the mills of the Carnegie company, is piped into the abandoned gas wells in the vicinity of McKeesport and held without leakage in these reservoirs until such time as it may be needed, when it is pumped from the wells and distributed to the various steel mills.

It's a great conservation plan, this of the Carnegie people It makes possible a great saving of natural resources, of coal, of gas, or of both, and it affords a big economic saving, which naturally is highly satisfactory to the Carnegie management But there is always the fly in the ointment some place or somewhere The fuel thus stored decreases by just so much the demand for other fuel, and does away with the need of just so much coal mining or gas well digging, and to that extent reduces employment

Milk consumption having dropped off in New York City 1,000,000 quarts a week, the New York milk dealers this morning cut the price a cent a quart which will mean a monthly saving of $1,000,000 to the city's consumers That's one way to stimulate sales, and a mighty good one in a time of unemployment when the matter of existence becomes a problem

The Bishop of Aberdeen, who recently visited this country, told a Glasgow gathering that Hollywood is more respectable than some of the Glasgow suburbs. Those who have visited some of the suburbs to which the bishop referred will realize that, even conceding the absolute truth of his statement the bishop was spreading the butter of praise on Hollywood mighty thin

The curator of the Emory University museum, Perry W Pattig of Atlanta Georgia, holds that when a man may die after being bitten by a tarantula, he will not die as a result of the bite and to make good his case let himself be bitten When death results from the bite of a tarantula or a scorpion it is because the one who is bitten is all to scared But what is to prevent one being scared if bitten by either?

THE PRESIDENT'S VOICE: "WAKE UP."

Editorial Opinion.

THE LAWLESS ALIEN.

Congress will serve the country well if it acts upon the President's recommendation that the deportation laws be strengthened to facilitate the enforced departure of criminal aliens. American citizens of vicious habit are a menace sufficiently serious without having the problem of law enforcement complicated by the activities of debased humanity from far countries. That these aliens play a prominent part in the war upon society in this country goes without the saying. The President's recommendation should be adopted with as little loss of time as possible.

Mr. Hoover goes further. He calls attention to the thousands of persons who have entered the country in violation of the immigration laws. As he says, the method of their entrance indicates their generally objectionable character, although that statement might be qualified by the admission that some who have violated the law in getting into the country have proved law-abiding thereafter. But such exceptions do not justify laxity in dealing with this condition. So again the President is right when he urges that the laws be strengthened

America welcomes those of other lands who in coming here comply with the provisions of the law and observe it thereafter. As the President indicates, it is only doing justice to them that the lawless be kept out, or, if they succeed in getting in, that they be put out.—Boston Transcript.

AN EARTHQUAKE EXPLAINED.

On June 11, 1886, the old New York Herald carried a story with the headline "Earthquake Off the Jersey Coast." The report stated that a heavy earthquake had occurred in a certain town in New Jersey; that buildings were shaken, windows broken on the main street, and that there had been a general shake-up

Now, forty-four years later, Admiral Robert E. Coontz clears up the mystery of that "earthquake"—in his reminiscences "From the Mississippi to the Sea." On June 10, 1886, Coontz was a junior officer on the warship "Juniata," which was at sea, off the Jersey coast, for target practice when a fog came up. It was customary during target practice to fire one solid shot. To Coontz was awarded the honor of firing that shot on this occasion, which he did with neatness and dispatch, shortly after midnight

Next morning the fog cleared, "and," says the admiral, "we found that we were much nearer to the shore than we had thought."

"The truth was," he confesses, "that my solid shot had gone straight up the main thoroughfare and buried itself in the outskirts of the little town The Lord was good to us, and no lives were lost. The captain called us in and said it was his idea that it was a proper time for every one to keep his mouth shut and we followed his advice."—Detroit News.

First To Propose Abolition.

BY J H. GALBRAITH.

It is interesting to note that a congressman from Ohio, the first state in the union to be "born free," made the first proposition in congress to abolish slavery through the union That congressman was James M. Ashley, of Toledo. Of course the proposal made no headway, and so the name of Ashley is only thus remotely connected with abolition, but it is a distinction that rightfully belongs to his memory and is not denied.

He was a native of Pennsylvania, born near Pittsburgh in 1824. He lacked educational advantages, and most of his education was secured while he was serving as a clerk on an Ohio river streamer. While yet a young man he learned the printer's trade and for a time was the editor of a newspaper at Portsmouth—the place where his feet were first firmly planted on Ohio soil.

In 1851 he went to Toledo and engaged in the drug business, but a few years later his establishment was burned and having no insurance, he was rendered practically penniless This event convinced him that he was not a good business man, and he decided to take up the study of law and was soon able to secure admission to the bar, where he became a leader.

Politically he was first a Whig and then a Republican, and he was sent as a delegate to the first Republican national convention, which nominated James C Fremont in 1856 Two years later he was elected to congress and he was a member of the national house almost continuously from that time until the close of the fortieth congress. He was one of the managers on the part of the house in the impeachment proceedings against President Andrew Johnson In 1869 he was appointed governor of the Montana territory He lived until 1899

Regularity in Eating.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

We may with propriety compare the human body to the automobile The food we eat is the equivalent to the gasoline, and our health corresponds to the efficiency of the running of the car

Of course, good food alone will not insure good health, any more than good gasoline makes a perfect automobile If the machinery is not perfect, the quality of the gas makes little difference in the efficient running of the car.

The body is a machine capable of converting food into energy It is more than this. It generates the energy necessary for running the machine. Also it provides a remedy for the wear and tear of the machinery

Converting food to these uses by the machinery of the body, is spoken of as the process of "digestion and assimilation" Good food and good habits of eating are necessary factors in this process. In their presence the digestive system changes the food into substances available for use in the body

To accomplish this the digestive system must be in good condition. When we say "good condition," we mean that the intestinal tract must possess muscular tone and be unfailing in its action Proper elimination must be provided for, and there must be an absence of irritation in the digestive organs.

If the digestive system is not in good condition it will quickly inform us so by some digestive disturbance. Such disturbances are indicated by the presence of dyspepsia, "biliousness," "sickness at the stomach" Occasionally there will be belching, headache, loss of appetite, fatigue, restlessness, loss of sleep, and at times, actual vomiting.

Many persons who suffer digestive disturbances believe they are not receiving the correct food. However, we must not overlook the fact that they are eating the same food that many others are eating who are not sick. If digestion fails it is probable there is some defect in the machinery. This defect may be a fundamental weakness that must be overcome, or it is due to neglect in the care of the machinery.

In order that the digestive system may be at its best it must be operated regularly. It must be permitted to do undisturbed work. This is accomplished by regularity in eating There must not be stuffing of food at one time and underfeeding at another time Such a practice is sure to result in disturbed digestion.

When the body is tired or worn out, the digestion is poor. We eat better after hearing good news, good music, or seeing a good show. When we fear something or are angry, the digestive machinery works poorly. Because of these well-known facts it is best always to eat in pleasant surroundings.

Always rest before and after eating. Do not rush through your meals. Take your time, chew your food slowly and thoroughly. Do not allow yourself to become easily angry. If you are angry do not sit down at the table. It is better to go hungry than to eat while in this mental state

The moral of this tale is, Take care of the machine, then the machine will take care of the fuel.

The Lesson of Experience.

President Hoover will not call a special session of congress It is unnecessary. Unemployment of anything else He has learned that only by experience.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Universe Maker.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

Not long ago, in discussing Professor Albert Einstein at a meeting at the Savoy hotel in London Bernard Shaw named eight men as makers of universes. Some of these, he confessed, were not really makers of universes they were only repairers of universes Conspicuous among the eight names was that of Pythagoras who is not usually thought of as being in the class of world builders, to which view on this occasion Shaw is inclined. Is this choice really justified?

To the average person mentions of Pythagoras come back from school days. He is recalled only for having proved two geometrical propositions which can not be disputed, are certainly very useful One is that the angle inscribed in a semicircle is always a right angle The other is the famous backbreaker, which was so hard to memorize the square on the hypotenuse of a right-angled triangle is equal to the sum of the squares on the other two sides

If this were the only contribution to science made by Pythagoras he would be remembered in history to be sure but not as a builder or even repairer of the universe However, it is recognized that the second theorem above, which may be derived directly from the first, is a basic theorem in Euclidean geometry

Indeed, it is authoritatively the criterion for flat space, of the Euclidean world of normal experience, as is the equally famous theorem that the sum of the angles of a triangle make up 180 degrees. It was only when Riemann posted a new definition of the distance between or separation of two points, that there came into being the strange Riemannian geometries of today upon which Einstein so heavily relies

Pythagoras was a philosopher and established a school of academy His followers devoted much attention to geometry, and arrived at many interesting and valuable results.

In especial, they used geometrical representations of quantities and derived the relations between them from the geometrical properties involved One such interesting proof of geometry is that the product of the sum and differences of two quantities is the difference of their squares

It was no mean achievement of the Pythagoreans to have discovered the five regular solids, and in particular to have learned how to contruct the twelve-faced solid, given the radius of a circumscribed sphere Knowledge was held both sacred and secret, in those days, it was not to be given to the world, but held inviolate as a secret of the particular order or school which made the discovery

There is a tradition, how trustworthy we can not say, that one of the members of the Pythagorean school, Hippasus, was drowned at sea for revealing the secret of the construction of the revolted dodecahedron.

Plato likewise was imbued with reverence for this figure, which was believed to have a mystic significance.

In the Timaeus, where he presents an ingenious description of the building of the universe by pure mathematics, the sphere of the universe is generated from the dodecahedron by the faces falling out and making the solid spherical.

By the discovery of the proposition about the square of the hypotenuse, the Pythagoreans were brought face to face with the dilemma of irrational numbers and incommensurable lines The diagonal of a square whose sides are one each, is incommensurable with either side. The Pythagoreans had built up the theory of proportions, for commensurable magnitudes only. When they barged, by accident, into incommensurables, they surrendered their entire theory of proportions as untenable. This was a premature step, for eventually Eudoxus formulated a definition applicable to all cases Euclid reaped much of the credit due primarily to Pythagoras and his followers. — Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Dec. 8—For nearly a half century William Tyler Page has served the house of representatives.

Since 1881, when he was appointed a page in the office of the clerk of the house to the present when he himself is clerk, Page has been at the disposal of representatives.

Now, on the eve of his golden anniversary he has set for himself a new task—the bringing about of a more orderly method in the various states in formally certifying to the election of members of the house of representatives.

It's a rather delicate task, because Clerk Page can do is merely to make suggestions, but he is convinced of the necessity of such a move and intends doing all he can to bring it to success.

• • •

It won't be the first time he has tackled ticklish propositions for the house. There have been many in the almost 50 years he has been on the hill.

Edward McPherson was clerk of the house when he first came to the capitol as a page. It was through McPherson, a one time Pennsylvanian heart of Page's mother, that he got the job.

Today he is regarded as much a part of the hill as the capitol itself In fact, the late Champ Clark once asked Page in all seriousness if it were true that he was born in the capitol Page replied no, but added that he certainly expected to die there

He has come in intimate contact with almost every figure of national importance during the last half century. And his experiences have been wide and varied

There is one story which he never fails to tell when in a reminiscent mood. It concerns the time when the speaker of the house threw a set an inkwell on his head during a tense party headed session with the result that belligerent representatives regained their good humor.

Carlisle was the speaker. Page at that time was a minor clerk.

• • •

The house was in a bad temper and the situation rapidly was getting out of the speaker's control. Vainly Carlisle banged his gavel for order. During the incessant [illegible] mering an ink stand was jarred off the desk upon Page's head and summer suit.

So ridiculous did he appear with the ink streaming down his face that the house forgot its bitterness and roared with laughter.

Speaker Carlisle gave him $10 for a new suit, and thanked him for accomplishing what he had failed to do.

He is an authority on all questions concerning congress. His daily mail is filled with inquiries from people in all parts of the country seeking information on every conceivable He goes on the theory that a clerk of the house of representatives is supposed to know something about everything.

And every one's request is at least acknowledged

How few of us realize that time will soon do the same to us!

SCIENCE ALWAYS tells you something new, making you think in new directions, most annoying for many of us.

What have been called new stars result from gigantic blasts in space, explosions causing light that reaches the astronomer's telescope.

Prof. Milne of Oxford, so wise it makes your head ache merely to look at him, says matter can be destroyed, transformed and converted into pure heat and light.

If so, then pure heat and light are matter transformed, consequently pure heat and light are matter and presumably pure heat and light can be changed back into matter. Thus divine providence creates what man has never been able to do—perpetual motion.

The great Jeans, and the almost equally great Eddington, tell htat the universe must run down some day and stop, because matter is constantly being destroyed, shooting off its electrons and protons from the stars, and there is no way of restoring it.

An Eskimo, watching a whale spouting water, might say: "That will soon be empty, and have no water left." There's plenty of water around him, also small marine animals with which he builds up and renews his bulk.

The super-genius that created this cosmos will know how to keep it running.

And the explanations of Einstein limiting space and telling us when "time started" will, some day, seem to us not unlike explanations that earlier Einsteins wrote into the book of Genesis.

ASSERTS HE'LL WIN G. O. P. SPEAKERSHIP

Hamilton Sees Victory Ahead in House Caucus Contest Tuesday.

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 8—As the vanguard of Republican house members-elect arrived here today to attend the G. O. P. caucus Tuesday, Representative Arthur Hamilton of Lebanon repeated his claim that he has corraled enough votes to win the speakership.

Hamilton declared that 41 of the 70 Republican members-elect to the lower legislative branch have definitely pledged him their support. A majority of at least 36 votes is required to win the race.

Representatives Charles H. Jones of Jackson and Earle L. Johnson of Painesville also are candidates for the speakership. The 12 members of the Cuyahoga county house delegation are credited with having agreed to support Johnson.

A number of G. O. P. house members-elect, including Representative R. D. Williamson of Xenia, who objects to further alleged domination of the Republican party by "the Hamilton county gang," and certain purported legislative lobbyists, are supporting Jones' candidacy.

Besides selecting a speaker, the caucus will decide upon a majority floor leader, a clerk and a sergeant-at-arms.

The 58 Democratic house members hold their caucus here Thursday afternoon to select the minority floor leader.

20,000 REPORTED MASSACRE VICTIMS

Chinese Troops Trapped and Slain by Red Bandit Horde.

HANKOW, China, Dec. 8.— Trapped between the towns of Kwangshui and Hwangan, less than 100 miles north of this important center, nearly 20,000 provincial troops have been massacred by a like number of bandit reds, reports from Northern Hupeh province said.

The loss yesterday was the heaviest suffered by the government since the inauguration of its campaign against banditry soon after the end of the recent civil war.

Chiang Kai-Shek, generalissimo and president of the Chinese Republic, today has taken command of the drive against Communism throughout North Central China. However, this seemed not to have deterred the hundreds of bands of roving reds, for they continued attacks against shipping on the upper Yangtse river with undiminished vigor.

Delegates to National Temperance Council in Session at Columbus.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8—Delegates to the National Temperance Council gathered behind closed doors today to plan the most aggressive campaign in behalf of prohibition in the last decade.

Likewise in strict secrecy, members of President Hoover's law enforcement commission met. Word came that although it would be "a physical impossibility" to complete their much-guessed at dry law report within the next three or four days, it might be possible to finish without another adjournment.

Meanwhile, an open attack upon prohibition was in progress at a "national constitutional convention" attended by individual wet advocates with the announced purpose of agreeing upon what they believe to be the best single substitute for the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act.

The word that the dry leaders would attempt to formulate a militant program during their meeting of the next three days was given out following a five-hour session of the executive committee of the council late yesterday.

'Ghost City' Had One-Man Population for 40 Years

GUNNISON, Colo.—When the famous Leadville stampede was at its height in 1879 the overflow of gold seekers filled the mountain valleys of Colorado with booming mining camps. Among these boom camps was Gothic, 40 miles north of here in the Elk mountains.

Gothic was incorporated in 1879 by the unanimous vote of 26 citizens. A smelter was built at Gothic and two at Tincup, nearby. In a few months 3,000 persons lived at Gothic.

The Gothic smelter was never lighted. Almost as rapidly as the steady stream of canvas covered wagons had poured into Gothic and adjoining camps they began to disappear down the outward trail.

One Man Stays

There was one citizen of Gothic, however, who did not take the outward trail. He was G. H. Judd, a promising young geologist with a college degree. Judd lived in Gothic on the crest of the boom and stayed to be the "ghost city's" only inhabitant for 40 years.

Judd, who liked to be known as "the man who stayed," died recently.

Now that the summer tourists have left, Gothic is without a single inhabitant.

The kindly hospitality of Judd made him known to thousands of visitors. In recent years he had rented cabins to tourists during the summer season.

"In population it isn't quantity but quality which counts," he would say when strangers would ask him what the population of Gothic was.

Conducts "Museum"

His interest in geology led Judd to assemble an unusual collection of mineral samples. During the summer months his cabin was a veritable museum. Visitors were asked to register in a book Judd kept for that purpose. During the years it accumulated many famous names.

When he died his body was cremated according to his request, and his ashes were scattered over the mountains he had lived among so many years.

A niece, the closest living relative of Judd, is planning to have the cabin in which he lived, burned, and erect in its place a stone seat as a fitting memorial and an enduring reminder of the hospitality which was always to be found there.

SUSPECT HELD IN ABDUCTION CASE

Farmer Denies Any Knowledge of Miss Marriott's Disappearance.

By The Associated Press

GREELEY, Colo., Dec.—The puzzling disappearance of Miss Enid Marriott, 28-year-old Wiggins, Colo., school teacher, today again occupied attention of authorities who held Melvin G. McClanaham, 48, Mitchell, Neb., farmer, in jail here in connection with the case.

He was arrested at Scotts Bluff, Neb., Saturday night on a telegraphic warrant charging the abduction of Miss Marriott.

He denied knowledge of the case and waived extradition. He was brought to Greeley yesterday.

Sheriff Johnson declined to discuss either the warrant or arrest of McClanham, except to say he had received a letter which intimated the Nebraska man might have knowledge of the teacher's disappearance.

All efforts to locate Miss Marriott have been unavailing. She disappeared the night of Nov. 16, as she alighted from a Denver train at Wiggins.

Some officers believe she has been slain, and her body concealed.

NAVY SEEKS MORE MEN, HIGHER PAY

Wants Made Known in Annual Report of Secretary to President.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Secretary Adams sailed straightaway into a statement of the wants of the navy for men and money today in his annual report.

Addressing Presidnet Hoover, he called for more man power, better pay and promotions at regular intervals to prevent the "stagnation" of officers through long periods in the same grade.

The navy secretary pointed out that the present level of compensation was 11 per cent above that received in 1908, but said the cost of living had more than doubled since that time.

Other legislative proposals for which he advocated congressional approval included:

Authorization to modernize the battleships New Mexico, Mississippi and Idaho;

Establishment of a naval airship base on the Pacific coast;

Guarantees for conservation of the naval petroleum and oil shale reserves; and

Bans against photographs, sketches or maps of vital military and naval defense installations and equipment.

The increasing importance of aviation to the naval forces was evident throughout the report. A six-plane patrol unit will be added to both battle and scouting fleets, and two scouting squadrons of 20 planes and 12 planes, respectively, will be attached to new light cruisers.

His statement came as the senate was getting ready to consider the $60,000,000 drouth aid bill unanimously reported by its agriculture committee. There was every likelihood the senate would adopt this figure, despite the administration desire for a $25,000,000 limit. The house expected to receive shortly the report of its own agriculture committee, favoring $30,000,000 for the purpose, together with a minority report by Representative Aswell, Democrat of Louisiana, urging appropriation of double that sum.

ESTIMATES SLASHED

Committee Cuts $840,000 Off the Hoover Budget Figure.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. Budget estimates were slashed again today by the house appropriations committee, which reportel the annual interior department supply bill with a total of $68,552,006.

The measure is $5,640,382 above last year's figure, but is $840,700 less than the president's budget recommendation. The committee also cut budget estimates in reporting the treasury-postoffice supply bill.

No new projects are provided for in the appropriations for the reclamation service, although continuation of several projects is made possible.

Opposition to extension of reclamation systems has been voiced on the ground that agricultural production is now too large.

Increasing cost of the Indians to the federal government provoked a tilt in the house appropriations committee between Secretary of Interior Wilbur and Representative Cramton, Republican of Michigan, chairman of the sub-committee in charge of the interior department bill, hearings made public today disclosed.

Cramton pointed out that federal appropriations for Indians increased from $10,425,186 in 1923 to $24,423,496 recommended in this year's bill. The interior department requested a $2,400,000 increase over last year.

ENGLAND FEARS FOG

See Threat of Epidemic Similar to That in Belgium.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Dec. 8.—England today feared the appearance here of the mysterious epidemic of death which last week spread through the Meuse valley in Belgium under cloak of a heavy fog and took the lives of 67 humans and killed a great number of livestock.

Near Grosmount, Yorkshire, 10 cattle died yesterday on one farm of a mysterious malady of which the symptoms, veterinarians said, were much like those of victims of the Belgian fog. Like Belgium, southern England has suffered from the intense fog conditions of the past few days.

The view of Belgian medical officials that the Meuse valley deaths were due to fog alone has found considerable support among London doctors with a wide experience of fog effects.

His selection to head a ministry was not made until Senator Louis Barthou gave up the task as hopeless when the Radical Socialists refused to participate in a government which included a representative of the strong rightist, Louis Marin.

M. Laval told M. Doumergue that he would do his best and give him a definite answer tomorrow. The new premier-designate is an independent Socialist.

PIONEER'S SON DIES AT UPPER SANDUSKY

David Miller, Retired Farmer, Stock Dealer, Passes Away.

Special To The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, Dec. 8—David Nelson Miller, 87, well-known local resident and retired farmer and stock dealer, died Sunday afternoon at his home on West Wyandot avenue, following a three weeks' illness from carcinoma. He had been in failing health for the last several months.

Mr. Miller, the last surviving member of his family, was a member of one of the notable pioneer families of Ohio. His father, David Miller, came to what is now known as Pitt township, Wyandot county, at that time it was still Rock township, Marion county and purchased 1,000 acres of land at the first land sale of what was known as the Sandusky plains. On this tract of land he erected the first frame house to be built in Wyandot county. In this homestead Mr. Miller was born on June 23, 1843. He attended the district school and after his father's death, his mother with her family moved to Upper Sandusky, where he attended the public schools and Ohio Wesleyan university for a short time. While at college his health failed and in May, 1863, he took a trip to Europe, spending most of the time in Germany.

He returned to the states in January, 1864. Upon his return he engaged for about a year in farming and stock raising. Then he went to Alabama, where he purchased a large plantation and went into the business of raising cotton. After spending two years in the south, Mr. Miller returned to this county. Except for four years, which were spent in Pittsburgh where he was connected with the stock farms, the remainder of his life was spent in this city.

On April 10, 1873, he was united in marriage with Miss Fannie Witter of Frederick, Md. Mrs. Miller died Dec. 15, 1888. No children were born to this union.

Fraternally, Mr. Miller was a member of Warpole Lodge No. 176 F. and A. M., being the oldest living member of that lodge. He was made a Master Mason Nov. 15, 1864. He was among the 20 oldest living Masons in Ohio. He was past high priest of McCutchen chapter No. 98 R. A. M., a member of Upper Sandusky Council No. 98, a life member of Marion Commandery No. 36 Knight Templars, a member of the Ancient Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine of Toledo, a thirty-second degree Scottish Rite Mason and of the Sons of American Revolution. He was chairman of the building committee which erected the local Masonic Temple in 1909.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at the Masonic Temple in charge of the Toledo Scottish Rite Masons. Burial will be made in Oak Hill cemetery.

Coughs Cost Him PLENTY

"I used to be a chronic sufferer from colds and coughs. Every winter I was 'out' a number of days—away from work with a cough. Last winter, when the first sniffle of the season came along, I got a bottle of Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup. It stopped my cough right at the beginning. And—thanks to the syrup—I've kept healthy ever since." J. Hagan, Syracuse, N. Y.

PILES

Ended Without Cutting or Salves

Thousands of Pile sufferers have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves or cutting remove the cause.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation and strengthen the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist with a rigid money-back guarantee.

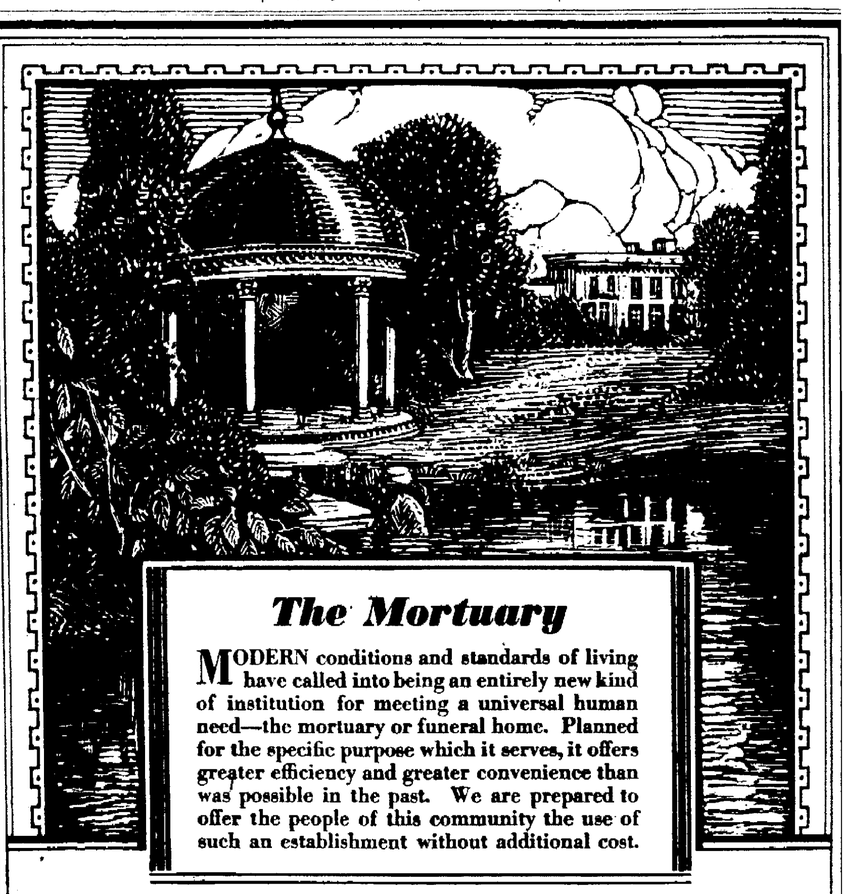

Dr. Leonhardt's precription has a wonderful record of success right in this city and Henney & Cooper invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantees to refund the purchase price if it does not end all Pile misery.—Adv.
